SUMMARY

Hello. I am a React, React Native, and TypeScript developer. Programming has shown me that everything is possible and achievable if enough effort is put in. I have encountered various problems that often recur, such as styling issues, React component bugs, and React Native notification issues, which have been among the most memorable challenges I have worked on. I want to continue learning and improving in the field of programming and enjoy the challenges that this field presents on a daily basis. I value teamwork, as working in a team allows you to meet many interesting and motivated people with the same goal and passion. I also enjoy working independently, which allows me to work effectively both in a team and on my own.
